

Paying to fight climate change

Roughly half of Californians—and more than half of Democrats and independents—are willing to pay more for renewable electricity like wind and solar to help fight global warming.

Source: Public Policy Institute of California.