Fall festivals celebrate art, food and fun

Glass pumpkins, fruit orchards and artisan olive oils among autumn goods showcased by local organizations

by Robin Migdol

The kids are back in school, there's a chill in the air and fall fruits and vegetables are plentiful — it must be autumn festival season.

This October, local art and culture organizations will host festivals featuring artists, food, entertainment and children's activities. Read on for a preview of the upcoming festivities.

Great Glass Pumpkin Patch

Pumpkins get the Cinderella-slipper treatment at the 15th annual Great Glass Pumpkin Patch at the Palo Alto Arts Center. More than 30 glass artisans display 8,000 glass pumpkins — some small enough to fit in the palm of your hand and others life-sized; some traditionally orange and others brilliant shades of every color of the rainbow.

Visitors can browse the artwork during the first four days of the festival and make purchases on the last two days. Local glass artist Demetra Theofanous will give a torchworking demonstration on exhibition days and artists will be available to talk about their work.

Proceeds from the festival will benefit the artists and nonprofit art education organizations — Palo Alto Art Center Foundation and the Bay Area Glass Institute. According to Louise Carroll, COO of the Palo Alto Art Center Foundation, it's the foundation's largest single fundraising event of the year.

“It's a great way to showcase the artists. It's been a rough go for glass artists because of the economy,” said Mark Murai, executive director

Arts & Olive Festival

The Cañada College campus is home to 350 olive trees. Not surprisingly, its fall arts festival is inspired by the olive, though a diverse lineup of activities is planned. Don Landis will present a Home Cured Olive workshop, which will include the history of the olive in California, Greek-style olive curing and tasting with cheese and crackers. Visitors can also taste a variety of artisan olive oils.

A suggested $5 donation from each visitor will also go towards a good cause. "It's the largest scholarship fundraiser for students on campus all year," said Robert Hood, Cañada College's director of marketing and public relations. "Plus you can find great pieces of art by local artists at great prices and awesome food."

Kids can participate in face painting, crafts, marionettes, balloon art, juggling and storytelling. Music and dance groups, including the acoustic band Barton Tyler Group, will also take the stage throughout the day.

FORECLOSURES

Foreclosures are provided by California REsource, a real estate information company that obtains the information from the County Recorder's Office. The date is the recorded date of the deed when the lender took title to the property. The price is what the lender paid for it (usually the mortgage balance plus foreclosure fees). Each property is now owned by the lender and is for sale, or will be for sale soon, individually or through public auction. Individuals should contact a Realtor for further information.
